

CHARLES ROSE, FAIA
Founding Principal

After graduating from Princeton University and Harvard University's Graduate School of Design, Charles Rose established his architectural practice with the intent to develop innovative yet contextually appropriate work. In over two decades, he has completed more than 50 buildings throughout the United States in widely varying settings: physical, ecological, cultural, and historic. The work's inventiveness, coupled with exceptional craftsmanship, has kept him at the forefront of American design. His award-winning buildings have been praised for their form, orientation to site, and carefully composed experiential sequences as well as their sustainability and net-zero integration.
